STOP THIS ASSAULT ON OUR CHILDREN!

Caption to report in The Sun (October 24th)

BAKER
He has done nothing to stop the multi-racialist tyrants

THE MULTI-RACIALIST TYRANTS in control of what is supposed to be our country are now sinking to new depths. An offensive of brainwashing and persecution more far-reaching than ever is currently under way. The intended victims of this offensive — part of the programme to force multi-racialism on Britain by any means, however vicious — are our schoolchildren, including the very young.

Hertfordshire Council has just launched a new 'anti-racist' drive, to reach into more than 600 nursery schools, as well as other schools and colleges. It is designed to employ secret police-style methods of monitoring, control and intimidation over children as young as three and four years old.

We are used to the 'loony left' pitching upon 'racism' (at least when practised by Whites) as some sort of 'crime' to be punished. But in this case it is not just the loony left that is involved; all three parties represented on the council, Labour, Democrats and Tories alike, are in it together.

FILES TO BE KEPT

Any sort of verbal abuse, threats or graffiti with a racial content, or any sort of taunt deemed 'racist' made in a playground or a classroom, is to be listed on school files against the record of the pupil concerned. Reports of what is described as ''unacceptable racialist behaviour'' are to go on the records kept by county education officials.

In case anyone thinks that this is no more than a case of putting down forms of misconduct by children which are liable to damage good order and discipline in schools, the Hertfordshire proposals make it plain that the drive is to be accompanied by a deliberate programme of brainwashing of youngsters with multi-racialist propaganda aimed at breaking down the healthy instincts of our children to be loyal to their own kind, to put their own blood kindred first and to be proud of their own history and culture. The 'anti-racist' programme drawn up by Hertfordshire's principal Assistant Education Officer, Raymond Williams, includes proposals for putting across 'anti-racist' propaganda in all school lessons, from college seminars right the way down to stories told in infant and junior school assemblies. This will logically lead to a ban on patriotic stories with messages likely to instil British national pride and patriotism into the young.

YOUNG INNOCENTS
Kids like these are now targets for the multi-racialist zealots running amok in Britain's education system

Interestingly, even one of Hertfordshire's local Tory MPs finds himself forced to admit that no so-called 'racial harassment' of ethnic minority pupils by British children, of the kind that the Education Authority's new policy tends to suggest, in fact exists in the county's schools.

HINDU LESSONS

Meanwhile, the same juggernaut of multi-racialist brainwashing has been set in motion against British schoolchildren in the Bristol area. This time the emphasis is on force-feeding small infants with alien religious and cultural ideas.

The parents of children attending Cranleigh Court Infants School in Yate, just outside the city, have reacted with fury to their youngsters being forcibly subjected to a two-week course on Hinduism. The school itself does not even have one Hindu pupil!

Children aged from three to seven have been taught how to recite Hindu prayers, including one to a monkey god; told about a ten-headed Hindu demon; shown how to make prayer mats; and made to study the Hindu religious festival of Diwali.

One mother was so angry that she withdrew her son from the school, saying: ''I feel our religious rights were violated.'' However, a spokesman from Avon County Council made it perfectly plain that his education authority is fully in favour of this kind of course of study for local schoolchildren.

JUST AGAINST WHITES

Amid all the 'anti-racist' mania and the tyranny it has spawned — particularly as the multi-racialists in the world of education have been given the green light by the present Tory Government to pour their poison into British children's minds at will — some people might still believe that this whole 'anti-racist' programme is intended to be applied even-handedly as between Whites and non-Whites in our schools. Thus, for example, they might have been led to suppose that British pupils have as much right to protection against harassment at school as ethnic minority youngsters.

The lie was given to this by the recently reported case of a white boy who was hounded by Asian bullies at Lampton Comprehensive School in Hounslow, West London, which has a 50-50 mixture of White and Asian pupils. 16-year-old Joe Murphy was repeatedly picked on by a gang of young Asian thugs at the school, the ringleader of which told him: ''Kiss my feet, you white trash.''

After refusing, Joe was on separate occasions stabbed in the leg with a school compass, slashed with 'religious' bracelets, beaten with rice flails, and bitten, punched and kicked by a mob of up to 30 Asian pupils. After the last attack he was taken to hospital with head wounds and bite marks on his chest. But, even so, the school saw fit to expel only three of the Asians involved in the last attack and suspend a mere six others.

Multi-racialists sink to new depths in anti-white persecution and brainwashing

The whole 'anti-racist' game was given away by the school's headmaster when Joe's parents phoned him to complain about the racial attacks suffered by their son. Replied the headmaster: ''You can't be a racist against a white person.''

So there it is from the horse's mouth. The assumption lurking at the back of all 'anti-racist' policies is that only non-Whites can ever be the victims of racial abuse or violence, and that only Whites can ever be the culprits. 'Anti-racism' is intended by its authors solely as a weapon for crushing our own race.

These authors of 'anti-racism' themselves, who include in their

FIRST BASICS OF A GREEN POLICY

FREQUENTLY over the years, readers have written to us asking us to feature articles giving details of nationalist policies of anti-pollution and for the conservation of the environment. With Mrs. Thatcher now, very belatedly, showing interest in such matters, the demand for 'green' policies has intensified.

If truth be known, we are all 'Greens' — that is to say that everyone, right across the political spectrum, wants a better environment and wants to oppose pollution in some way or another.

The difference lies, not in the desired ends, but in the MEANS that the parties are prepared to adopt in pursuit of those ends. Here we believe that what is important is to get down to first basics.

Pollution of our environment is caused principally by two things. First, there is the reckless activity of BIG BUSINESS, unrestrained by government, which exploits national resources essentially for short-term private profit instead of for the long-term benefit of the nation. In addition to this, big business is allowed far too much freedom to dump industrial waste and pollute the atmosphere, as well as our land, forests and waters.

Secondly, there is the INDISCIPLINE of large numbers of the population, who throw away litter indiscriminately and dirty our towns and countryside in their selfish quest for personal pleasure.

The British National Party, more than any of the other parties, is dedicated to the achievement of STRONG GOVERNMENT which will put big business in its place and regulate and control it in the national interest. It goes without saying that this regulation and control will include the imposition of firm curbs designed to protect our environment and resources. By contrast, those who favour 'free-market' economic policies simply are giving the green light to industry and commerce to do what they like — regardless of the harm they may do to our environment and resources.

Likewise, the BNP stands for a new ideal of RESPONSIBLE CITIZENSHIP, with the emphasis on duties just as much as on 'rights'. This will achieve the greater personal and national discipline that is necessary to make our country a decent place to live in.

But there is a further consideration. Nationalists, more than all the other parties, value NATIONAL FITNESS AND HEALTH. We are dedicated, more than anyone, to the ideal of a healthy population. This means the achievement of a sound and nutritious national diet as well as provision of the best medical facilities and of facilities for healthy exercise and recreation. It goes without saying that, with such priorities in mind, we will be much more firmly committed to the achievement of a healthy environment for people to live in.

We are also dedicated to the achievement of spacious and beautiful towns and cities, not disfigured by hideous buildings. We will, where necessary, demolish large parts of Britain's towns and cities to achieve this, whatever the cost. Are the other parties pepared to do this? If so, we have not heard of it.

But there is one principle above all which stands out as far more important than any others where conservation is

TORY COME-UPPANCE

Mrs. Thatcher's Tory colleagues get attacked by red mobs — but it is the weakness of their own government that has brought about the collapse of law and order in Britain

WITHIN A MONTH of Tory Education Secretary Kenneth Baker being knocked to the ground and given a beating by a left-wing mob at Leicester University, another senior Tory has found himself on the receiving end of red mayhem.

Whilst visiting the North London Polytechnic in mid-November, former Tory Party Chairman Norman Tebbit came under a bombardment of eggs and was subjected to obscene verbal abuse from a mob of the same kind made up of the communist elements that dominate the college. On his arrival, the reds taunted him with pro-IRA slogans and catcalls about the bombing in Brighton during the 1984 Tory conference in which he was injured and his wife was permanently confined to a wheelchair.

The reds attempted to block Tebbit's way into the meeting hall where he was scheduled to speak, and would no doubt have violently assaulted him if he had not had official bodyguards to protect him.

Tebbit was supposedly at the Polytechnic to address its Conservative Association on the subject of the Government's introduction of loans for students, but in the event his speech was completely howled down as missiles were thrown at him. One student who had come along to hear what Tebbit had to say could only comment at the end of it all that he "felt very sorry for him."

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Despite the vile behaviour of the red mob — particularly objectionable because of the jeering references to the event that invalided Tebbit's wife — many people will find it hard to have much sympathy for Tebbit himself. If he and Kenneth Baker and other top Tories are now personally starting to feel the lash of physical violence from the revolutionary left-wing political underworld, whom have they to blame but themselves?

In almost a decade of Tory rule, they and their boss Mrs. Thatcher have presided over a progressive collapse of law and order in Britain. As the forces of chaos, terror and bloodshed have grown during their period of office, the government of which they have been members has reacted with policies of grovelling appeasement and surrender. And as the state of public order has degenerated neither Tebbit nor Baker nor any of their ilk has ever been heard to protest against these weak policies.

It was under Mrs. Thatcher that Britain's cities first exploded into murderous race riots. What was her response? She rushed to appease the culprits with Lord Scarman's Report, which in effect blamed not the rioters but the police and white society!

It was then Mrs. Thatcher and her fellow Tories who, acting in the spirit of the Scarman Report, went about hamstringing the forces of order in what were described as 'racially sensitive' inner city areas, resulting in what became, in effect, no-go areas for law-enforcement.

APPEASEMENT OF TERROR

The same pattern of appeasement has been the order of the day in Mrs. Thatcher's handling of Ulster affairs. In her infamous Anglo-Irish Agreement, allowing the Irish Republic to interfere in the internal affairs of a part of the United Kingdom, Mrs. Thatcher has conceded to the IRA a large part of what it is after — encouraging it to believe that it only has to go on bombing and murdering for a few more years to obtain the rest.

But of course we have not heard a word of protest against these policies of appeasement and weakness from either Mr. Baker or Mr. Tebbit!

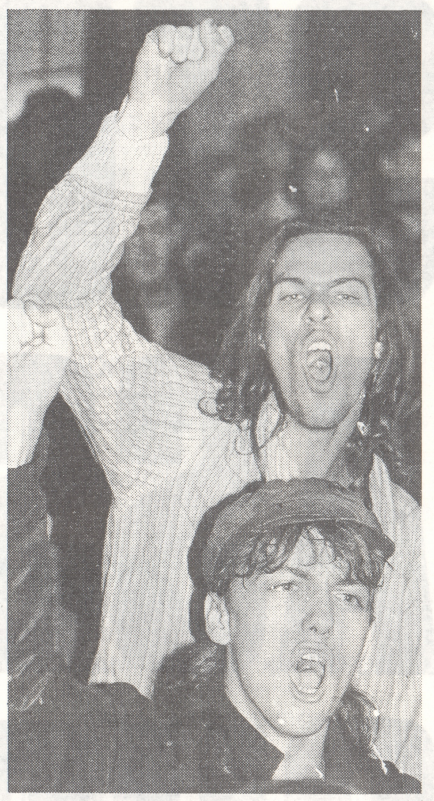
THE UNDERWORLD IN CONTROL

Meanwhile, the left-wing political underworld throughout mainland Britain has spent the last decade getting ever stronger and nastier, unresisted anywhere by the Tory Government. The reds now control whole boroughs. Both through the Labour Party in the council chambers and the multi-racial mobs on the streets, their will now prevails over large and growing areas of our country. They have ridden to power on the back of the inner-city riots and turmoil, and they see the Irish Republican mobsters and their methods in Ulster as representing the pattern for the revolution they wish to introduce into the rest of Britain.

And not only this — the Tories have also witnessed red mobs attend the meetings and marches of patriotic organisations like the British National Party for the sole purpose of smashing them up and preventing patriots from exercising their rights of free speech and assembly. Yet not a whimper has been raised by Tories in protest against this tendency nor has a finger been raised to stop it. Tories are quite happy when nationalists are deprived of their right to speak, but they are only to ready to yelp in complaint when they themselves are on the receiving end of the same treatment.



THE FACE OF RENTAMOB
Violent scum like these specimens have been allowed to get away with it for long enough in this country

Seen against this background, the rough house that Tebbit got from the reds in North London, along with Baker's beating at Leicester, look like the beginnings of a come-uppance for the Tories, in as much as it has been their own cynicism, cowardice and dishonour which have allowed mob power to gain its present proportions in Britain.

THEIR EUROPE — AND OURS

A study of contrasts, as we approach 1992

THE CON-TRICK that is the Single European Act, detaching the UK from its historical anchorage as an offshore island separate from the Continent of Europe, with associations with English-speaking nations all around the globe, will be fully implemented in 1992. Government ministers have acknowledged that 'some' loss of sovereignty is inevitable when the single internal European market without frontiers comes about in that year, and both they and their Prime Minister are fully committed to the objectives of the Act. So civil servants of various government departments are right now scurrying to and from Brussels busily engaged in making British laws, procedures and customs comply with the stream of directives issuing from the European Commission — that commissariat which is in the business of abolishing the freedom of the British Nation.

We have been conned on all sides, and not least by the media, into believing that membership of the EEC is vital to our interests, that it guarantees economic growth and prosperity and that it will increase our influence in international affairs.

It is not. It does not. And it will not!

Margaret Thatcher's Bruges broadside in which she made out that the Government she led would resist assimilation of the UK into a unitary European state is on a par with her speech, when in opposition, pledging her future government against the 'swamping' of this country with immigrants. The record speaks volumes, and proves that Thatcher is a consummate liberal politician well versed in the practices of that contemptible profession: duplicity, double-speak, equivocation and lies.

GOVERNMENT ENDORSED SINGLE EUROPEAN ACT

The facts are that Mrs. Thatcher's Government endorsed the Single European Act, in February 1986, which was then ratified by the traitors in parliament in July 1986. Then, out of 635 so-called 'representatives' of the British people, only 192 were present to witness this shameful act of betrayal, and of these only 43 voted against the measure.

The Single European Act embodies the very policies that Mrs. Thatcher is now artfully pretending to set her face against: closer institutional ties — political, economic and monetary — between Britain and the member nations of the EEC.

The Single European Act abolishes the frontiers — physical, technical and fiscal — of 12 European countries on the 31st December 1992; it weakens the powers of those countries' internal legislative bodies by giving more powers to the Commissariat at Brussels; it makes compulsory the adoption of the same rates of VAT, excise duties and other indirect taxes, and it forces our native Anglo-Saxon law system into subservience to the continental Roman law system of the European Community.

Already, the 'Europeans' of all parties at Westminster, members of the civil service and leading lights in the commercial world are using terms and jargon which obliterate references to countries. They talk of 'zones' and 'regions'. Ulster and the Republic of Ireland are, very interestingly, lumped together as one region, with other parts of member countries similarly treated. This is all of a piece with the intentions behind this con-trick. When the referendum on Europe was held in 1975 — a referendum which itself was completely rigged by the media — there was nothing said about political or legal union. But the traitors of Westminster were fully alive to the implications of the laws affecting this country being made by the Brussels Commissariat, which they accepted and enthusiastically endorsed.

MORE LIES AND DUPLICITY

Lies and duplicity will be even more the currency of the politicians and media in the next few years — you can depend on it. Reflect on this: metrication of our centuries-old coinage was introduced under Edward Heath and then implemented in 1971. This was followed by metrication of our units of measurement and temperature. And now they are engaged in building a channel tunnel for the first time in the history of these islands. How long do you think it will be before we are driving on the right-hand side of the road?

Only the British National Party will restore the British people's birthright and national identity that are now being sold by the liars of Westminster. This will be done by revoking our adherence to the Treaty of Rome. The Europe with which we shall co-operate is not the Europe of today, governed by internationalists, dominated by money and overrun by alien immigrants. It will be the Europe of old: a Europe of sovereign nations — embracing Scandinavia, a united Germany and Central and Eastern Europe freed from Communism. It will be a Europe also liberated from occupation by American forces and delivered from subservience to American government and money power.

Britain's relations with that Europe will be based on the mutual respect of proudly independent nations, free of the supra-national tyranny that has been imposed by the EEC. It will be a Europe whose member nations are masters of their own internal affairs but co-operate peacefully and in friendship to solve the many problems they have in common. It will be a Europe populated solely by Europeans — and it will be a Europe in which European culture is the only recognised culture. Indeed, it will be a vastly different Europe from the one of today and of 1992.

THE TANK CONTROVERSY: WHY WE MUST BUY BRITISH

A CONTROVERSY is now raging in government circles concerning the choice of replacement for the now obsolete Chieftain tank, used by British forces over the past two decades.

Many service chiefs, backed by a powerful lobby at Westminster, want to replace the Chieftain with the American Abrams M1 tank instead of the British-built Challenger. It is believed that the Abrams' gun is superior to that of the Challenger and that to develop an adequate gun for the latter tank would involve some delay in delivery of the tank. It is argued that British forces cannot afford this delay.

What British forces most certainly cannot afford is to become reliant on American supply for its main battle tank. In addition to this, should the Abrams be chosen it is likely that Vickers of Leeds, the builders of the Challenger, will go out of business. This would mean the end of an independent tank-producing industry in this country.

That is why we believe that it is essential that Britain should opt for the Challenger. Whatever short-term advantages might be involved in getting delivery of the needed tanks earlier rather than later, this is nothing as compared with the disadvantage that will accrue if another part of our national arms-producing capacity is destroyed.

A strong and independent armaments industry is one of the first foundations of national security. This is why we say that the Government MUST buy British!

Great Glasgow rally

THE ST. ANDREW'S DAY RALLY held by the British National Party in Glasgow on November 19th was one of the best ever. A crowd of not far short of 100 heard speeches by Gus McLeod, David Bruce, Harry Mullin and John Tyndall, with Steve Cartwright in the chair. The meeting ended in tremendous enthusiasm and the collection raised nearly £150.

The meeting was followed by a most enjoyable social, and on the following morning Glasgow BNP met Loughton (Essex) BNP in a five-a-side football match. After a hard but sporting contest, the score ended up eight-all. On behalf of everyone, thank you, Glasgow BNP, for a great weekend!

BNP and Loyalists stage stage powerful protest against IRA in London

IN what was the first manifestation of strength in the area by nationalists for some time, the BNP, combined with Ulster Loyalists (mainly UDA supporters), staged a powerful protest against an anti-British rally in Central London, held at Conway Hall, Red Lion Square, Holborn, by Irish Republicans and their supporters on Friday, the 11th November.

The promotors of the rally were the far-left front organisation calling itself the 'Troops Out' movement — a body well known for its sympathies with the terrorists of the IRA.

Main speaker at the rally was long-time Irish Republican agitator Bernadette Devlin-McAliskey, and the clear purpose of the rally was anti-British incitement.

Among the other elements present were representatives of the self-styled 'Broadwater Farm Defence Campaign'. This red front outfit is currently agitating for the release from prison of the thugs who hacked PC Blakelock to death in the Tottenham riot of 1985. The BFDC is suspected of having the longer-term aim of building up co-operation between violent Blacks in mainland Britain and Sinn Fein and the IRA in Ulster.

Chairman of the proceedings was Deputy General Secretary of the National Union of Journalists, Jake Eccleston. For the rest, a number of reds and supporters of republican terrorism were bussed into London from as far away as Liverpool and Manchester.

About 100 BNP and London Loyalists turned out to counter-demonstrate so that the British point of view could make itself felt against this exhibition of treason. After gathering in a local pub, the nationalists and loyalists concentrated their forces on the streets for a march in strength to Red Lion Square.

POLICE UNDER ORDERS TO PROTECT SUBVERSIVES

This powerful mobilisation culminated in a vigorous protest demonstration close to Conway Hall. After a time, and no doubt acting in accordance with their political masters to protect the 'rights' of free speech of every form of anti-British subversive, police made half-hearted efforts to disperse the nationalist and loyalist demonstrators. This did not stop the latter from determinedly regrouping in the streets nearby to continue their protest for some time afterwards.

Early in the evening a small group of five nationalists was set upon in a typically cowardly attack by some forty reds and IRA supporters, but it was later reported that a few nationalists and loyalists formed themselves into squads which took appropriate action against some of the red thugs responsible as they left Red Lion Square at the end of their rally.

The evening was a big success in the way of building links of closer co-operation between the BNP and Ulster Loyalist elements.

Biggest ever Wakefield meeting

THURSDAY, November 17th, saw the biggest ever meeting of the British National Party Wakefield unit. Lady Jane Birdwood, leader of the Choice organisation, spoke to a packed meeting. A short time ago, Wakefield was a small and almost inactive group; now it has been transformed into a powerhouse of nationalism, and the BNP aims to emerge in 1989 as the the most dynamic force on the Wakefield political scene.

Lady Birdwood's calls for practical solutions to the vast problems of immigration, namely solutions revolving around mass repatriation, received thunderous applause, and she pledged the fullest support of her organisation for the efforts of Wakefield BNP to further the rapid growth of nationalism in West Yorkshire.

Supporting speakers at the rally were Stanley Clayton-Garnett and Tim Hepple. The audience was a very positive mixture of young new recruits and seasoned and experienced nationalists — the sort of formula that is making the BNP the premier nationalist movement in Britain.

The chairman's appeal for money to pay for a Wakefield PO box number was answered enthusiastically — with plenty to spare! A big literature table was manned by local activists, who sold BNP propaganda material and various nationalist books.

The total number present at the meeting was 35.

The unit has now brought out its own local newsleter, The Wakefield Nationalist, and the December issue is ready for distribution. This, and other information about the activities of the unit, can be obtained by writing to PO Box 101, Wakefield, West Yorks. WF2 9XY.

YOUR LETTERS

Sir, — Radio Sweden stated recently that Sweden is to take 16,500 refugees this year, and that government policy is that these will be distributed throughout the country.

A small town in the South, Sjobo (population about 5,000) was to receive 20 of the refugees.

However, the townspeople held a referendum, which showed that 70 per-cent of the inhabitants did not want them.

Leading members of all the political parties, including the Prime Minister, have joined all Sweden's newspapers in denouncing the people of Sjobo. The town, they say, will be 'infamous' all over the world as a symbol of intolerance and 'race hate'.

But surely, if the leaders of Sweden believe in 'democracy' they should be prepared to abide by the will of the majority, which the referendum clearly expressed. Once again, we see 'democrats' in their typical humbug.

R.E. TANDY
Kings Lynn, Norfolk

Sir, — I am entirely in agreement with J. Nelson of Plymouth (October issue) when he says, with regard to the 'Single European Market', due to begin in 1992: "All this is intended to mean the end of the British nation-state...The BNP has four years to fight this take-over by European internationalism..."

I would like to see British Nationalist bang the drum very hard indeed in the battle to avert this catastrophe in the time remaining to us.

When we were about to enter the EEC, we were told categorically by those in favour of that step that British membership would not encroach significantly on British national sovereignty.

It is therefore a bit of an eyebrow-raiser to read that Edward Heath, one of these advocates of entry, stated at the recent Tory conference that Britain had committed itself to membership of a European super-state when it signed the Single European Act of 1985 — something to which Heath lent his full support. Here we see him in his true colours!

It will also be recalled that Heath informed the electorate in the last general election run-up before he, as Prime Minister, took Britain in: "We (the Tory Party) are committed only to negotiate terms of entry — not to take Britain in." Thus, by taking Britain into the EEC, without a further mandate from the electorate, Heath was guilty of a barefaced act of deception against the British people — amounting, I would suggest, to treason.

R.D. MOLESWORTH
Cheltenham, Glos.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Realistically, there is nothing that the BNP can do to stop what will happen in 1992 — let us not deceive ourselves. This does not mean, however, that we should not campaign hard against the EEC and the Single Market that is part of it — so that a body of opinion may be built up that is powerful enough, later, to disentangle Britain from this treasonable commitment into which we have been landed by our politicians.)

STOP THIS ASSAULT ON OUR CHILDREN!

number many white race-traitors of the most noisome and verminous kind, are the dregs of humanity. They range from out-and-out militant left-wing race-mixers to middle class 'liberal' teachers, administrators and politicians with an eye to the main chance, who serve the multi-racialist establishment in order to further their own ambitions, and do not give a damn if this means sacrificing Britain's children on the altar of race-mixing. Their type now dominates all the Westminster political parties, which have all been equally guilty of unleashing this filthy tyranny upon our young. In his respect, it should be noted that present Education Minister Kenneth Baker has not raised a whimper of protest, nor lifted a finger, against the multi-racialist tyrants in our schools and the local education authority officials who stand behind them. The same is true of Prime Minister Mrs. Thatcher herself.

Quite apart from anything else, all the political parties, as in the case of Hertfordshire, are now clearly calculating on the basis that Britain in times to come will cease to be a predominantly white country, and it is therefore ethnic votes that will mainly count in the long term in determining which of the old party gangs will rule.

To thwart the hideous fate that these politicians intemd to inflict upon our future generations, Britons must support the one force that fights multi-racialism — and they must support that force before it is too late. We owe it to our children: Support nationalism NOW!

Front's North Western Organiser crosses over to BNP

STEPHEN SMITH, North West of England Organiser for the National Front (Flag faction), last month left the Front to join the British National Party.

Mr. Smith declared at the same time his intention to persuade as many as possible of his ex-Front associates in the region — and elsewhere — to follow him into the BNP.

In changing parties, Mr. Smith explained his move as follows:-

> "The decision I have made to join the British National Party has not been taken lightly and is not aimed against the leadership of the National Front in any personal way; but in the light of their lack of initiative in providing the party with one effective leader I had no option as a nationalist but to leave the National Front and join a movement which can lead the cause of nationalism in Britain in the future. I would personally urge all fellow-nationalists to follow my example and back the BNP: the sole party with one effective leader and an efficient internal party structure operating in Britain today."

Mr. Smith personally signed the above statement, which can be inspected should anyone query it. We are informed that all or most of the Rochdale and Manchester members of the Flag faction of the NF have responded affirmatively to Mr. Smith's call to support the BNP. As and when this is followed by other groups in the North Western Region we will let readers know.

In the meantime British Nationalist extends a comradely welcome to these newcomers, who have demonstrated the most practical way to achieve unity among nationalists in Britain.

It is intended that in the coming two or three months leading spokesmen for the BNP will visit each of the new units being formed by the party in consequence of this influx of new blood, and in January party leader John Tyndall will be visiting the area to speak at an all-Lancashire rally, which will probably be held in Rochdale.

November 13th: fiction and fact

THERE ARE amazing things that ambitious policemen and journalists will do to get ahead in their careers — even if it means telling downright lies to please their masters.

After the British National Party visit to Dewsbury, Yorkshire, on Remembrance Day last month, one Superintendent Reece, of Dewsbury Police, made a statement to The Yorkshire Evening Post to the effect that a BNP contingent of activists had arrived in the Thornhill area of the town, where dwell most of the families involved in the Overthorpe School race dispute, and had been promptly turned away, before they could engage in their intended activity, by police following demonstrations of hostility by local residents.

The actual facts of the matter were that the BNP body, which included the editor of this paper and the party leader John Tyndall, was greeted almost everywhere in the district by friendliness and support; they leafletted the area from beginning to end and also sold many copies of British Nationalist without the slightest incident. After completing the operation, they were making their way back to their vehicles when they were met by a police inspector accompanied by a constable. On being asked what they had been doing, Mr. Tyndall told the two officers of the leafletting and paper sales. The response of the inspector was courteous and friendly and he made no attempt to interfere.

Needless to say, The Yorkshire Evening Post, instead of checking on the facts, printed Supt. Reece's story verbatim the following day. Doubtless, the Superintendent is anxious for promotion and in this respect is keen to curry (pardon the pun!) favour with Dewsbury's ethnic minorities — hence his tall story.

The inspector and constable whom the BNP party encountered were much more typical of police attitudes — it seems to be in the higher ranks that some of the most politically-motivated police officers are to be found.

The Yorkshire Post and other papers achieved about equal honesty and accuracy in their reporting of the BNP's Remembrance Day activities in Yorkshire that same weekend. According to these reports, the party had sent its activists to York to stage a wreath-laying on the memorial there followed by a march and rally, and had been thwarted in this by large numbers of opposition in the city, who met them at the station and turned them away.

Once again, this was complete rubbish. Following a Home Secretary's ban on all marches in the area, and expecting police obstruction in the event of any attempt to stage an activity in York, the BNP decided to make only a token appearance in the city in the morning in order to lay a wreath and then to spend the later part of the day with a leaflet drive and paper sale in Dewsbury, followed by a rally in Huddersfield.

In the morning party leader John Tyndall and BNP war veteran George Shillito, accompanied by a photographer, arrived in York and proceeded to the main war memorial with their wreath. On finding a large police presence there, they went on to another memorial nearby, where Mr. Shellito laid a wreath on behalf of the party. The BNP men then left the city and proceeded to Leeds, where they met other party activists assembling for the activities planned for the afternoon, which went off smoothly and successfully.

One paper, The Independent, in addition to printing these untrue stories concerning the party's alleged presence in York, even went so far as to report that the party had chosen the city in remembrance of the 'massacres' of Jews carried out there in the fourteenth century.

Do these liars really believe the nonsense they utter and print? Or are they just career men and women who know where the power in this country lies and are singing for their supper?

Tower Hamlets

Tories and SDP beaten

BRITISH NATIONAL PARTY candidate David Ettridge caused something of a local sensation in the Lansbury ward of Tower Hamlets (East London) last month by beating both the Tory and Social Democratic contenders in a council by-election. The BNP vote was a modest 49 (2 percent of the poll), but this was enough to force the Tories (31 votes) and SDP (21 votes) into fourth and fifth place!

Labour won the election narrowly over the SLD. On the doorstep before election day many voters had told BNP paper sellers that they supported the BNP but would vote SLD to keep Labour out. In the event, they failed.

FIRST BASICS OF A GREEN POLICY

The first need of conservation is to conserve OUR PEOPLE, the people whose ancestors built this country and laid the foundations of its great success: the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic stocks that go to make the British identity and created British greatness.

We must not only CONSERVE our people; we must IMPROVE our people — by policies for genetic cleansing and progress. We must discourage the breeding of undesirable stocks: criminal elements, as well as the feeble-minded, the feckless and the lazy. And we must encourage the breeding of our best stocks: the most intelligent, the most industrious, the strongest in physique and character. POPULATION QUALITY must be our first aim in the quest for a better nation.

We believe that people make their environment, not that the environment makes people — a left-wing and marxist idea which has today been adopted by all the Westminster parties, the Tories included.

From these principles will come policies for a better environment, for better health, for a country of beauty, tidiness and cleanliness — a country which protects its amenities and resources for future generations instead of just living for material riches and for the present.

These, in other words, are the foundations of a sound 'green' policy. Unless we dedicate ourselves first of all to these principles, no policies for the protection and improvement of our environment will ever succeed.

We therefore concentrate on awakening our fellow-countrymen and -women to the need for these principles. Once they have been recognised, it will be for experts in the various fields involved to devise the precise methods whereby such principles may be put into effect.
